One of the Sights of Santa Barbara Cal., Is About to Be Destroyed. Poom the San Francisco Examiner. Albert McGee, the owner of the famoush big grapevine of El Montecito, has announced his intention of cutting down the vine. This is a hard blow to Santa Barbara, as the vine is one of its best known sights, and is a great attraction to tourists. It is, with the possible exception of a big vine a few miles below Montecito, the largest vine in the world.

Its top covers acres and its trunk is almost as large around as a man's body. The fruit is picked yearly, not by the box, but by the ton, and it is a great curiosity. A curious legend attaches to the vine and an older vine, from which the present vine is an offshoot. According to this story the old vine was planted years ago, about 1775. old vine was planted years ago, about 17 by a beautiful Spanish women from Los Angeles, Donna Maria Marceline Feliz. She was about to make the trip on horseback from Los Angeles to Santa Barbara, and, upon her leaving. her lover, Don Carlos Jose Maria Dominguez, gave to her a cutting from a grapevine to be used as a riding whip.

This cutting Donna Maria stuck into the soil upon reaching Montecito, and it flourished as no other vine in Santa Barbara county had ever flourished.

The older vine was cut down in 1876 and taken to the Centennial exposition, where it attracted general attention. The daughter vine, which is to be cut, will find humbler quarters in the rooms of the Santa Barbara chamber of commerce. The vine is to be cut, first, because its presence on Mr. McGee's grounds keeps the grounds forever overrun with sightseers; and second, because the vine itself is beginning to show signs of decay. by a beautiful Spanish women from Los Angeles, Donna Maria Marceline Feliz. The offerings yesterday were good for Saturday and the best for some time. The delayed arrivals of Friday heiped to swell the regular Saturday's receipts, But packers all wanted supplies, and while a little bearish at first, paid pretty much Friday's prices for their day's purchases. The late sales were fully as good. A slight advance in Chicago encouraged buyers to bid up stronger toward the close than the fore part of the day, and the finish was the best of the market. And while the receipts were large for Saturday they were pretty well worked of

It is said that L. F. Wilson, of Wichitz Falls, Tex., has purchased 4000 2-year-old steers of E. B. Carver, of Henrietta, Tex. at $21.50 per head. These steers are located in the Sugg Bros.' pastures, in the Indian Territory.

"We are prosperous in our section," said D. B. Dotts, of Hudson, I. T., who was here yesterday with hogs. "There are more cattle and hogs in the country and they are doing well. Crops fine."

Reports from Pan Handle, Texas, and Southwest Oklahoma are of the most flattering character. Thomas J. Zook, who travels for the Chicago Live Stock Commission Company, is just in from there and says he never saw the country look finer and more promising crops. And the country is rapidly filling up with farmers. About the usual number of cattle on hand, but mostly young things, is and 2s.

M. G. Swartz, of Dwight, Kas., who was In yesterday with hogs, says cattle are short in Anderson county, but hogs doing well, and good corn prospects. G. M. Neff, of the Drovers' Telegram, left yesterday for a month's visit in the East

A MYSTERIOUS AMERICAN.

Queer Man Who Lives on an Island All Alone Off the Mexican

"There are some queer freaks in this world," said a visitor from the interior last night, "and one of them lives over on the west coast of Mexico. He is an American, according to all reports, but so far no one has succeeded in penetrating the mystery that surrounds him. Down toward mystery that surrounds him. Down toward the isthmus, not far from the mainland, is a small island, and it is on this that the American lives. Very few people know how long he has been there. The Indians all know him, but none of them can tell anything about his first coming. He has resided on the Island for so many years that he has become as much of a fixture as the rugged rocks that stand out on the coast.

"I saw him once on the mainland as he came to a little village to procure supplies. About four times a year he makes a trip to some village on the mainland to buy such things as he needs. He never his anything to sell, and always pays in gold dust, the origin of which is as much of a mystery as the man himself. His appearance is patriarchal now. His long gray beard, white hair and wild look make him an object of great curlosity to a stranger. He speaks Spanish brokenly, but with an accent that does not betray his nationality. His complexion is dark, probably due to the rays of the sun, but he has a certain the rays of the sun, but he has a certain the first and wild look make him and complexion is dark, probably due to the rays of the sun, but he has a certain the first and wild look make him and complexion is dark, probably due to the rays of the sun, but he has a certain the first and wild look make him and complexion is dark, probably due to the rays of the sun, but he has a certain the first and wild look make him and the rays of the sun, but he has a certain the first heavy and sandy, 7563 let like in the like bury, 250 lets.

"There has often been much speculation as to where his gold came from. Many think he has a secret mine on the island which he, from time to time, works. Explorers who have visited the island, however, report that it is barren, and gives no

It is said that the old man lives in a cave in the rocks, and that his food is birds and fish. He is well armed, and always buys considerable ammunition on his trips to the mainland. A number of times people have tried to draw him out, but he refuses to talk of his past or present mode of life, and such attempts are seldom made now. He is entirely alone on the island, and seems to love his solitude. His trips to and from the Island are made in an old ship's boat, which he has had ever since the present generation has known him. His expert handling of the sails and oars leads some to believe that at one time he was a sailor.

"Many think that he is the sole survivor of a shipwreck that occurred on the coast about forty years ago. Among the legends of the coast Indians is one which tells of the wreck of a big ocean vessel one stormy night and of the loss of every soul on board. There is a superstition that at times this vessel strikes a rock and goes down, There was not only a good cash movement, busing and better prices, ment, but sone investment buying and better prices, ment, but sone investment buying and better prices, much the saids and string and tents of endown.
